PROPOSED PAVING WILL COST $32,000

ENGINEER REECE MAKES ESTIMATE OF PROJECT

GRADE IS ESTABLISHED

Ordinance Passed Last Night—Will Adopt Paving Resolution This Afternoon

The city council, at a meeting last night, passed an ordinance defining the grade of the street on West Third street from Frederick Avenue to Grand Avenue then a block south to second street, a block north to the entrance to the College Park and east on West Fourth street to the end of the paving. This ordinance was passed with a view of paving these streets.

Another meeting of the council will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon to draw up and adopt a paving resolution, which will specify the kind and character of the material and other details of the paving project. This resolution, which is in the nature of an advance notice of intentions to pave, will be published in legal form in either daily or weekly papers.

The ordinance establishing the grade, specified a 24-foot road on Third Street from Frederick Avenue to Ray Avenue, then a 30-foot road from Ray Avenue to Grand Avenue. The remainder of the project will be 24-foot streets. The 30-foot street for one block on Third is so specified because a curbing and an 18-inch cement extension gutter-way is already there so it will not require much more paving on this block than for the 24-foot street on the others.

According to the present plans the new paving will be a 4-inch concrete base with an inch sand cushion then the bricks, which will be covered by Tarva, asphaltum, or some tar preparation. J. E. Reece, city engineer, has estimated that the total cost of paving project without the cost of bricklaying figured in, to be about $32,000. This would figure from $300 to $325 per 66-foot lot for the property owners.

Among the property owners along these streets, who attended the council meeting last night were: Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Eek, J. E. Holt, Marve Peery, Geo. McMurry, J. E. James and Bruce Montgomery.

A SHORT SIMPLE CONSTITUTION

CON CON IS GRADUALLY ELIMINATING LEGISLATION.

WHAT M. E. FORD WRITES

Says It Is Difficult to Keep Convention From Legislating—Nepotism Clause.

To the Democrat-Forum

Jefferson City, July 9—Some philosopher said "all things come to him who waits," and Cal Pierce added, "provided he works like ——— while he is waiting." Some of us came here with the hope that we could write a short, simple constitution and leave all the details to be worked out as necessity might demand or experience prove to be desirable.

We were opposed to trying to frame a complete code of laws and calling it a constitution. We have had to wait a long time and work diligently to see our dreams come true even in part. But it is coming true in a measure and the convention is gradually eliminating legislation and we are hoping they will do more of it. But it is very difficult to keep the convention from legislating and particularly where the matter pertains to some glaring evil that the delegates feel ought to be dealt with in some way by somebody.

About Nepotism.

An example of this is a clause just adopted and which is aimed at nepotism. This has become acute in the last few years by the tendency of the members of the General Assembly to appoint a lot of unnecessary clerks, usually members of their families. It is the custom for each member of the house to appoint a clerk and for each member of the senate to appoint four or five clerks and usually or at least frequently members of the family are appointed and some times some of those who are on the pay roll as clerks are not here at all. The excuse given for this is that the pay of members is so small that they can not afford to serve unless they can use some such device to increase their salary. This is no excuse at all, of course, for service is not compulsory and if a man can not afford to serve for the pay the law allows, he ought not to accept the place at all. But this is only one phase of this evil and is of minor importance. It is scandalous, but the root of the evil is much deeper. It is the common practice to load the pay roll down with a lot of useless employees. That is true of every department of every government in the land. And some very eminent men have been known to feel that it was incumbent on them to reward the deserving by seeing to it that the deserving got a place at the public crib.

Public Office a Private Snap.

And, in my judgment, the man who helps deserving friends and political henchmen is no less guilty than the man who helps deserving relatives. The great trouble is that we look upon public office as a private snap. Everybody is guilty of this. There are no exceptions. No one ever thinks of the public. Everyone always thinks of the fellow who wants the office. People vote for a man because he needs the job. If a man has held an office for one or two terms, it is time for him to get out and let some other fellow have a chance. If it is a good thing, pass it around. He may be a capable and efficient man and rendering the very best service possible. What of that? He has had enough. A bank employs a bookkeeper, a teller or a cashier and he proves to be a very capable man and renders excellent service. He is kept indefinitely. A merchant employs a salesman and he proves to be just the man for the place. He is kept right on the job. A school board employs a teacher and she gives the best of service. She is employed year after year. The banker is thinking of the good of the bank, not of the good of the cashier. The position may be a good one. That is no reason for "passing it around." And the same is true of the merchant or the school board. And for the same reason, that is, because the banker is acting in the interest of the bank, he does not employ any more help in the bank than he needs. The merchant does not employ any more salesmen than the business demands. The school board does not employ any more teachers than are necessary.

"Taking Care of the Boys."

But when it comes to public affairs we are thinking of the good of the of-

Not Gambling—Just Studying

When you're walking down the street and happen to discover a bunch of College boys and girls carefully tossing marbles at a cigar box, don't think they are trying to win a kewpie doll or something more or less valuable. They are merely performing an experiment in psychology and have no intent of violating the anti-gambling laws of Missouri. Each student in psychology, tosses or attempts to toss twenty-five marbles into a hole in a cigar box, ten times a day for ten days. The result of each attempt is recorded together with the time spent. At the end of the ten days, the students will know just what effect habit has in the improvement in marksmanship.

SEVERAL HOMES IN PARNELL ROBBED

FIVE HOUSES WERE ENTERED EARLY THIS MORNING.

WAS FRIGHTENED AWAY

Money, Jewelry and Clothing Were Stolen From Four Homes—One Clew Discovered.

Five houses were entered, four of which were robbed of money, clothing and jewelry at Parnell early this morning.

F. A. Messbarger, a druggist, was robbed of $100 in money, a pair of trousers and several checks; J. H. Thompson, an employe of the Standard Oil Co., lost $4 in money and some food. It is thought that the robber or robbers had an early breakfast at the Thompson home. B. F. Seyster was robbed of a pair of overalls, about 90 cents in money and a watch; E. T. Gaynor, a restuarant owner, lost $1 in money and a $200 note given him for collection. The home of E. J. Klaas was also entered but nothing is missing from this house.

After entering the Klass home, the robber or robbers were frightened away. This was about 2 o'clock this morning.

The only clew discovered thus far is the print of a man's tennis shoe in the yard just off the sidewalk at the home of J. H. Thompson.

Steve Roach was called to Parnell this morning to work on the case.

County Court Is Asked to Widen Road

The County Court has been petitioned to widen a road five miles east of Maryville between the farms of F. Grundle and A. Harrison for a stretch of one mile. The present width of the road is twenty feet. It is desired to make this road forty feet wide. The County Court was still discussing the matter at press time this afternoon.

Half Minute Interviews

The question asked today was: 'Should Maryville sponsor a Nodaway County Fair?"

H. L. Raines, jeweler: "I think we could have the most wonderful fair in the state outside of Sedalia. But the effort to hold one must be county-wide."

H. B. Cushman, music dealer: "Well I should say so. Nodaway County could have the best fair in the state. Bethany has a fair that ranks with Des Moines, and we could have Bethany backed off the map. We have the money, the community and the livestock. I should say we ought to have a fair."

Burt M. Rowley, cashier Real Estate Bank: "Yes the old-fashioned county fair is enjoyed by everyone—and should be as indicated, a fair for the whole county. However, steps should be taken and organization formed a year in advance as it takes time to put on a successful fair."

C. F. Remus, Remus Mercantile Co.; "I think it would be a good thing. But it should be an up-to-date fair. A county this size, and with such resources as we have should have a fair a little bit better than any other county fair in the state."

Fred Smith, county clerk: "It's all right for Maryville to sponsor the fair but all of the county should be in on it."

HIGH HEAT MARK EQUALLED TODAY

London Has Terrific Thunderstorm—Six Killed in Canadian Hailstorm Deaths In Wichita, Kan.

BULLETIN.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer reached 98 degrees officially, making the hottest day on record this year by Weather Observer Brink. Some thermometers registered as high as 114 in the sun this afternoon.

The heat record of 97 degrees for this summer was reached at 1 o'clock this afternoon and prospects were bright for the official registration going higher before the day was over. The previous high mark was set on June 25 but four days later the low June record of 49 degrees was established that night.

The minimum temperature last night, according to J. R. Brink, weather observer was 73 degrees. Generally fair and continued warm, except in the northwest portion, is the prediction of the weather bureau for tonight. Thundershowers are possible but not probable.

The Kansas City weather bureau reports that no storm areas have developed anywhere in the United States to give us a breeze and cooler weather is not expected soon. Last night on top of the Scarritt Building there, with no obstructions, the breez hovered around three miles an hour all night. This is hardly enough to feel.

Many farmers have reported that the last few days have been the hardest on horses that has been experienced this year. However, they report that these hot nights are mighty fine for the corn, as one can almost notice it shoot up over night.

Wichita, Kan., July 10—Death rode on the heat wave here today. One suicide, one homicide and an attempted homicide occuring here were attributed to the abnormal heat. The strain of the weather on the nerves tended to cause in some cases, a temporary loss of reasoning power.

Miss Gladys Royal, 27, was fatally stabbed by Thomas Wilson, an alleged lover following a quarrel. George W. Langston, a negro, was critically wounded by his wife.

Julius Brown, 87, a poor farm inmate, was found dead in a shallow pool of water near the farm. George Powell, 50, jumped from a hospital window while suffering intense pain following an operation, and was killed. Lee Geohan, 40, took poison which proved fatal.

Paris, July 10—France is in the grip of an intense heat wave. Twelve deaths were reported here this morning.

Montreal, July 10.—Six persons were killed during a hailstorm in Saskatchewan, Canada, and a heavy damage was done to crops, according to a report received here today.

London, July 10—Heavy damage was done here today by thunderstorms said to be worst in the city's history. The storm raged more than six hours.

A cousin, Miss Gladys Wilson of Goodley accompanied her home and will spend a month at the Lucas home. In Olathe, Miss Lucas was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Reeves and in Goodley she visited Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Reeves.

Mrs. J. L. Charles of Mercedes, Tex. whose husband died there recently, is gradually improving from her illness and is not in the hospital as reported to The Democrat-Forum yesterday. However, Mrs. Charles was unable to accompany the body of her husband to Maryville for burial.

Egyptian Prince Shot in London

Allykamel was not able to talk before he died and the woman refused to talk, but it is believed that the couple quarrelled.

Liquor in Party of Flemming Charged

Resulting in Death of Miss Elizabeth Dungan—Woman Testifies at Inquest Today.

Kansas City, July 10.—Charges that the death of Miss Elizabeth Dungan in the auto of Judge Edward J. Fleming here on the night of June 30 climaxed a "liquor party," were made here today before the coroner's jury investigating the affair.

Miss Dungan was killed when the car plunged over an embankment.

"They were under the influence of liquor," declared Mrs. H. R. Hunt, who lives near the scene of the accident and who went to the aid of the Flemming party, only to be told to "go back to bed" by one of the men.

"I was right up in their faces and smelled it, I know I shouldn't tell it but I want to find the guilty parties," she said.

Mrs. Hunt testifies she saw Judge Flemming remove the license tags from his car. Previously J. R. McNabb had testified that he saw the occupants of the car kicking at what appeared to be the license tags of the car.

C. I. Keeney, deputy county marshall, testified that he saw no liquor in possession of any of the party when he made his nightly inspection of the chicken farm where the party dined.

State May Make Road Materials

St. Louis, July 10.—The Missouri Highway Commission at a meeting here today took expected action to break high prices for the state's 60 million dollar road construction program when it was announced that bids would be asked for operation of a plant or plants to manufacture material needed in the construction of the roads.

The British plans will be incorporated in a note to all of the allied nations, it is understood.

While not the slightest official hint as to the nature of the plan has been allowed to leak out, these is a general feeling that an international conference is contemplated to study Germany's condition to pay and to form new terms of payment.

TRYING IT ON THE DOG

President Harding remarked in his address at Helena, Montana, that apart from the tragedy of the thing, he was glad that Russia had been making the experiment of trying out communism. He felt that the miserable results and suffering created by that mad experiment were going to establish anew the faith of Americans in their own principles and social order.

When there is a certain group of people in a country who want to try out some foolish idea, it is a relief to have some other nation try it out, and demonstrate its folly by actual experience. Thus Russia has consented to be the dog which should submit to this rash trial.

From now on those who think that communistic ideas would improve human welfare can be invited to remove to that land of so called equality, and see how it works from actual practice.

THE MOTOR CAR THIEVES

A considerable number of people seem in some localities to have reached the conclusion in these times that if they can obtain possession of an automobile, they can thereby avoid the necessity of having to cultivate or buy vegetables. With roomy bags and the favor of a dark night, they can hie themselves to some distant rural neighborhood, and descend upon a well tended vegetable garden or orchard while the owner is sleeping, and stock up their homes for days to come.

The meanness of fellows who thus prey on the results of other people's industry is too despicable for words. Where this kind of thing goes on, shotguns and watch dogs will be found a good deterrent as well as a good protection for the country folks.

President Harding has been trying hard to pave the way to Alaska with good intentions anyway.

A new third party was organized in Chicago Friday and Friday it split. The farmer-labor delegates were too conservative for the radicals and vice-versa.

Recent figures show that there are in the United States nearly 14,000 actresses. This includes those who are generally recognized as actresses and those who only recognize it themselves. The latter are in the majority.

So far as William J. Bryan is concerned, this is a hard world to please. At first he offered political revolution and the people thought it too much. Then he knocked off the R and submitted a few chapters on evolution and still a lot of people are not satisfied.

There is nothing like getting through life without disappointment. There is Tommy Gibbons, for instance. He let Jack Dempsey pound him for fifteen rounds for nothing and is not disappointed. He didn't expect anything. He is glad he was able to go the whole route. With Dempsey it is different. He is disappointed. He expected to knock Gibbons out but didn't and he expected to get $30,000 for doing it and got only $260,000. It is awful to be disappointed.

A New Orleans veterinarian comes to the defense of the Airedale dog in a protest against turning him into an Irish terrier by clipping his locks by people who think it will help to keep him cool in hot weather. He says it does not and that Airedales differ from other dogs in that they have two coats of hair, a wiry top coat and an under coat soft and downy. He further declares that, when the distinguished black saddle of the breed is removed by the clippers, it grows back a pale yellow or white. The Doctor claims that the outer coat should be removed by plucking it like the feathers from a goose. Whether this is good logic we do not know. It is submitted for the consideration of those whom it may concern.

St. Louis Man to Let Mutes Run His Plant

By W. F. SULLIVAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

St. Louis, July 10—A factory is to be established here in which the entire working personnel will be deaf mutes.

The project will be undertaken by S. H. Curlee, president of the Curlee Clothing Company, who, after an experiment covering 16 years, has found workers in this unfortunate condition to be more zealous in their endeavors than most normal employes.

In that 16 years Curlee has had one deaf mute constantly in his employ, has analyzed his attitude and attention to duty and has concluded that an independent factory operated solely deaf and dumb workers will be a success.

Hard Workers

"The deaf mutes are highly efficient workmen," Curlee explained. "They apply themselves to their work are seldom absent, and, through their zeal to earn a livelihood, just as capable as more fortunate persons. They have worked themselves up in many instances to positions of responsibility.

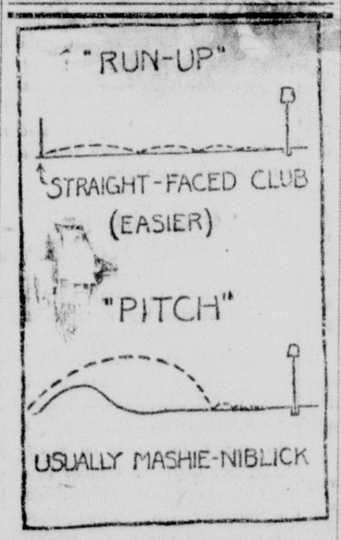
"In the departments which will be manned by them they will do all kinds of work, such as sewing, pressing and cutting. From among the experts will be chosen directors for the different departments. I have observed for years the industry invariably shown by the deaf mutes, and it will be interesting to watch the production of the departments operated by them as compared with departments manned by other workers."

Curlee pointed out that even more efficient work by the mutes probably will result from his experiment as instead of a director having to write down instructions as at present, the sign language can be used by the mute in charge.

Others Distracted

Other workers are distracted from their work much more often than the mute, he says, because they hear all noises outside the plant, or engage in conversation, which takes them away from their machines. The mute cannot hear the fire trucks go clanging by and hence does not lose the many minutes it takes the normal worker to go to the window and get back to work at his post.

Golf Pointers



Is it best to pitch all shots to the green, or is it better to play a run-up shot when possible?

Answered by BOB CRUIKSHANK

The man who, in 1921, defeated Hutchinson, Sarazen, and Barnes in an invitation tournament at St. Joseph, Mo. Runner up in Pittsburgh tournament for professional golfers, 1922, being defeated only by Sarazen.

The pitch shot is always a safe way to a green but the run-up is often better if you have a clear space to the green. It is also eaiser. In playing a run-up, a straight faced club should be used, and throughout the backswing and down-swing the club head should be kept low. The pitch and run, a combination of both, is also a very useful shot but rather difficult.

Sheet of Water Protects Firemen

Ample protection is afforded the firemen of an eastern city with the adoption of an interesting type of fire-fighting equipment. The unit is mounted on a two-wheeled cart, so that it can be brought up quickly to be used against a fire at close range. The cart accommodates a fireman who sits in it, and is able to handle a powerful stream of water from a nozzle directly in front of him. A "gusher" pipe is mounted on the cart behind him, which sprays a curtain of water all around him, so that a "safety wall" of water protects him and serves amply to prevent blisters and burns. The nozzle proper is mounted in a ball socket, so that it can be swung in any direction with equal facility. It can be connected to four, and even six lines of hose, and throws a stream of water 125 feet into the air.

"Knock-'Em-Dead" Rat Trap

A mechanical rat killer with a heavy spring and a rotating double hammer which strikes the animal on the head and throws him from 5 to 8 feet, is the latest in traps. This device automatically resets itself for the next blow, and two safety catches prevent accidental discharge. The rat is thrown away at once and leaves no odor to scare away other rats. The trap is made in two sizes, one for rats and one for mice.

Drills Horizontal Holes Straight

Anyone who has ever used a brace and bit knows that in the drilling of horizontal holes there is a great tendency to raise or lower the brace a trifle while drilling, which, of course, results in the hole being drilled at an angle. To overcome this tendency, slip a large washer that is free from burrs over the bit so that it rests on the smooth shank. As soon as the bit is held at an angle the washer will travel one way or the other, and the workman can correct the fault instantly.

Bottled Fluid Can Lift Tons

Sinbad's genii flask has been outdone in real life by the invention of an expanding fluid, easily carried in steel bottles by a child. The power may be released by a valve and used with jacks or other lifting devices to raise street cars, autos, and heavy weights. It is estimated that the power of the expanding fluid will raise 30,000 pounds in three seconds if properly applied.

A Simple Derrick for Farms

A handy and efficient derrick can be built in a short time from material found on nearly every farm. It consists of a discarded wagon tongue, pivoted on a fence post so as to revolve freely, and fitted with a simple winch for raising the load.

An iron pivot yoke is forged to the shape shown, or one may be built up of flat and round iron. A hole is drilled in the post top to accommodate the shank, an iron disk and a steel ball, taken from an old ball bearing, being set in the hole as shown, to make an easy-running bearing. The yoke straddles the tongue at its balancing point, a bolt being passed through a hole drilled in each. The winch consists of ¾-in. pipe and fittings, and is arranged as indicated, the winch shaft passing through holes drilled through the ends of the "hounds." One end of a stout cable is securely fastened to the winch shaft, and the other end to an iron collar that is an easy fit around the bottom of the post. This collar is held in position by half collars above and below it, screwed to the post. Hooks or clamps to suit the load are suspended from the outer end of the tongue. A rod, sliding through the ends of the hounds, near the winch shaft, as indicated, is pulled out to keep the crank from revolving when it is desired to swing the load. With this arrangement it is possible for one man to operate the derrick unassisted.

Wouldn't this be a fine old world if people would say to you what they say about you?

You often hear men say that you can't make a fool of them twice in the same way. Why use the same way when there are so many others?

Since the girls can't make the first page any longer by saying bobbed hair is the latest style tehy are taking to showing their ears, the observer of the passe-by tells us.

Do not these song titles suggest by-gone years to you: "As Long as the Congo Flows to the Sea," "Rufus Rastus Johnson Brown, What Are You Going to do When the Rent Comes Round?" "Waltz Me Around Again Willie," "I Don't Want to Play in Your Yard," "School Days," "In the Baggage Coach Ahead" and "On the Banks of the Wabash?"

Some Don'ts for Golfers

From Etiquette for Everybody.

Every game or test of skill is subject to rules, and likewise subject to an unwritten code of etiquette. Of the two, the latter is far more important, for a person may be an unskilled player at a game and may transgress the rules, and yet be forgiven. But if he shows himself ignorant of or indifferent to the laws of etiquette he is apt to be shunned.

Outdoor sports are no less rigid than indoor sports, and the game of golf is hedged about with more restrictions than any other. Beginning with the first stroke, or tee-off, the player has two invisible companions —Colonel Bogey and Old Man Etiquette. Colonel Bogey it is who says, "Bet you can't do that hole in 4; I do it in that all the time!" But then Colonel Bogey doesn't bother his head about Old Man Etiquette. The latter serious-minded gentleman whispers constantly in your ear, and here are some of his Don'ts:

Don't talk to others or make any noise whatever while another player is teeing off, or in fact making any play whatever.

Don't drive up too close behind other players on the fair green. Wait until they are entirely out of range.

Don't drive too near a putting green before the players ahead of you have holed out.

Don't criticize another player's stance or drive unless you are very sure he will welcome it.

Don't get in the way of other players, if you are going alone. A twosome has the right of way over a single player and also over a threesome or foursome.

Don't walk up to a putting green while others are holing out. It may make them nervous.

Don't watch another player too closely, even if he is in the same match with you. Let him take care of his own game.

Don't refuse to let other players pass by if you have a lost ball. Don't wait for them to ask permission to play through, but after a reasonable interval motion for them to come on.

Don't indulge in loud talk or laughter while on the course. To the seasoned golfer the game is a sacred rite and not thus to be profanely disturbed.

Don't, if following a public match, crowd too closely upon the players. Stand still and well back while the play is being made.

Don't quarrel with your caddie or exhibit other signs of temper.

Don't forget to be a lady or gentleman, no matter how good or how poor a game you may play. Be a lady or gentleman first, a golfer afterwards.

John D. Rockefeller in His 85th Year

His Ambition Now Is to Reach the Century Mark—Went to Work $12.50 a Month.

John D. Rockefeller has just entered upon his 85th year with sixteen years to go if he is to realize his ambition—the passing of the century mark.

His birthday celebration was quiet, as has always been the case. He attended church in the morning and went for an automobile ride in the afternoon. He also cut a huge birthday cake. For several years a band has gone to his home in the Pocantico Hills near Tarrytown and serenaded him on his birthday, but owing to the fact that the anniversary fell this year on Sunday this portion of the program was omitted.

The man who was acknowledged to have a clear title to the distinction of being the richest man in the world until Henry Ford went to the top of the list was born in the little village of Richford, N. Y., the son of a farmer, on July 8, 1839. His youth held no indications of his future greatness. He milked cows, chopped wood and worked in the garden. He was a "good boy," who went to church regularly and seemed to enjoy it. He had no prejudices against school, although he was not markedly brilliant in his studies.

Worked for $12.50 a Month.

At 13 he went to Cleveland. The future metropolis of Ohio was then a town of about thirty thousand, but the arrival of young John seemed to bring it luck, for within five years it had doubled in population and was growing like a weed.

The future multi-millionaire attended school until he was 16. He landed his first job in 1855, when he was employed as a clerk, bookkeeper and errand boy, receiving $50 for four months work. After working a year his salary was boosted to $25 a month. He was a willing worker, toiling early and late and never complaining of long hours.

From the day he became a wage earner he ceased to depend on his family, but paid for his board and laundry. He kept careful note of his earnings and expenses, and always put aside something for the church.

Controlled Big Oil Business.

At 19 he left his job because he was refused a raise and, borrowing $2,000, started a produce commission business in partnership with a young Englishman. The business flourished and Rockefeller cleared $2,200 the first year. He obtained his first great advantage over competitors, it is said, by getting rebates from the railroads, a practice he used later in his oil business.

With this advantage as a lever, he forced or bought out many smaller companies that were producing oil, and by 1872 he was in control of a fifth of the refining business of the United States.

Many years ago Mr. Rockefeller declared his ambition in life had ceased to be the accumulation of the greatest human fortune. ince then he is understood to have turned over a large part of his colossal fortune to his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

MARCEL'S

Says Diseased Chinch Bugs are Useless

The Missouri State Board of Agriculture again says that the so-called diseased, inoculated or vaccinated chinch bug plan has been discarded as impracticable and useless. The Board quotes the Missouri College of Agriculture and Experiment Station in confirming this statement.

Many readers have either seen or read after Dr. Perry G. Holden of the International Harvester Company, and will be interested in the following quotation from him by Jewell Mayes as follows, discussing the many years of experiments and tests at the University of Illinois by Doctor Forbes.

"The summary of years of tests and experiments in seeking to control the ravages of chinch bugs by introducing diseased bugs has proven a complete failure."

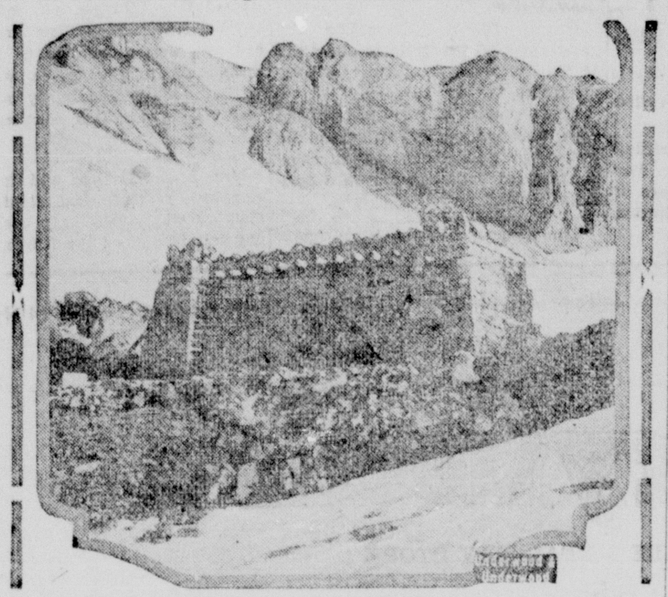
Farthest Up of American Hotels



This is Camp Muir, nestling in a niche on the side of Mount Rainier, 10,200 feet altitude—the highest hotel in the country. It is built of volcanic rock plastered together with cement which was brought up, 100 pounds at a time, on the back of a burro. Those who negotiate the climb to the summit of Rainier each summer sleep here at night and arise at 4 a. m. for the final pull up to the peak, 14,448 feet high.

Really Looks Double Dangerous

A coat carelessly tossed over the sign near the "Loop" from the park entrance at West Yellowstone changes "Doublet Pool Dangerous Area" to "Double Dangerous." But that seems to fit the case for a mere man when two girls get out the powder puffs.

"Savannah Mammy" was Well Presented

"Savannah Mammy," the opening play of the Mona Lee Players last night was well presented and well given. The big tent on East Third street was filled to capacity. Each member of the company carried his or her part exceptionally well.

There is a jazz orchestra with the organization that knows how to make people wiggle and wabble and go through the movements of dancing just the same. The orchestra is far and away above the average musical organization generally carried by a tented stock company.

fice holders and not of the public. Naturally the more offices there are the more office holders can be accumulated. Politicians are not interested in the public but they are interested in "taking care of the boys." Since it is just a question of feeding at the public crib, why not feed members of your own family first? The public attitude towards the public service is wrong and the public must have a change of heart. And that change of heart is not going to be brought about by inserting a provision in the constitution. But even if this anti-nepotism clause was a good one it has no place in the constitution. For that reason, if for no other, I should have been against it. As I have said, there is no excuse for any one loading the public pay roll with relatives and I am opposed to it as much as anybody. Some of the best men in the convention were in favor of this provision, because they felt that we ought to voice our disapproval and give the people a chance to do so. I have great respect for their opinion, but could not agree with them in this instance.

Against the Primary.

The convention also adopted a section that virtually does away with the primary system of making nominations. The primary is another example of the sublime faith the American people have in the efficacy of laws. It was to be a panacea for all of our political ills. The primary system is not only wrong in theory but it has been a failure in practice. The standard of ability in the public service has been steadily lowered since its adoption and this tendency is sure to continue in the future. I am speaking now of the higher offices. Men are being chosen for some of the highest positions in the states and in the nation who are totally unfit for the places they seek and would be unthinkable under any rational system of selecting candidates. There is no such thing as the office seeking the man in any sense of the term or in any degree. Besides it is purely a lottery and one man is as apt to draw the capital prize as another. No matter how intelligent voters may be, they must have the facts about candidates before they can form a rational opinion. On a pure guess a fool is the equal of a philosopher. And when voters have to select one name from a list of names without knowing anything about the man themselves it is a matter of guessing or acting blindly. And that is the situation when the people undertake to select candidates by the primary system. That is why it is a failure in practice. It is wrong in theory because under our system of government the people are supposed to determine the policy of the administration.

As the people can not meet in mass convention to determine the policy for themselves and as they must act thru representatives, the only other recourse is for the people to select those as their representatives who present a policy that meets with public approval. Thus political parties become a necessity. One group advocating one policy and another group advocating another policy. Those advocating one policy put forward certain candidates and said to the people, "We believe the government should pursue this course. Elect our candidate and they will put this policy into effect." Another group advocating a different course would nominate candidates who were pledged to carry out their policies and they would say to the people, "We believe the government should pursue this course. Elect our candidates and they will institute the governmental policies we espouse." The people could then choose between these different policies and in that way determine in a degree just what the policy of the administration should be. Of course it did not work perfectly. Nothing does. But it was right in theory. The only reason it worked so poorly was because there were no great issues before the people to be determined.

Under the primary system the only "issue" the only "governmental policy" to be determined is whether one man shall get a certain political plum or another. Other things being equal the man with the loudest voice, the largest gall, the fewest brains and the most money knocks the persimmon. And the greatest of this is money. It it foolish for a man to run for a state office in a large state unless he has a large fortune or some accident of fate has brought him before the public and made his name familiar. The present governor of Pennsylvania spent over $100,000 to elect himself to that important office and no one has ever thought of saying that he spent one dollar dishonestly. The time is rapidly approaching when the public service is going to be the pastime of the rich. If we adopt the "Presidential Primary," as some are advocating, the time will soon come when Henry Ford will not only be a presidential probability, but when no one but a Henry Ford will be even a presidential possibility. Naturally you will infer from what I have said that I am not strong for the primary. Yet I was opposed to putting this provision in the constitution. This is a subject that should be dealt with by the General Assembly and should not have a place in the organic law of the state. I not only opposed putting it in but I shall do my utmost to get it out when the time comes. If the people want to get rid of the primary they can do so by enacting a law to that effect. They will do so when they get tired of paying the price.

There was another proposition that was attempted to be inserted and that was a provision that nothing in the constitution should be construed as prohibiting the reading of any version of the Bible in the public schools. As there was nothing in the constitution that could reasonably be construed as prohibiting the reading of the Bible in the public schools and as it is being read wherever it is desired to do so, I was unable to see any reason for inserting this clause in the constitution Had there been anything in the constitution forbidding the reading of the Bible in the public school I would have been in favor of taking it out. That is a matter for the people of each community to deal with and the constitution should leave the subject alone as it does. I may be wrong in the conclusion I have reached on these questions, but I have acted as my judgment dictated.

Very truly,
M. E. FORD.

Today's Bright Spot

Columbus, Ohio, July 10—Romance is ended, for the willows that line Lovers' Lane are to be made into wooden legs.

Time turns youth into age, and in the transformation romance turns into drab realities—such as wooden legs.

Only a few more days will the venerable willows along the Westville road, Urbana, listen to the age-old story spoken from the heart of a man to the heart of a maid.

The City Council has approved the sale of the trees to a Greenville concern which manufactures artificial limbs.

Yes, we have no Lover's Lane, but we have some fine wooden legs.

Want 140 Acres of Land Sold in Partition

A partition suit was filed in circuit court late yesterday afternoon with Hardy E. Maloney, et al as plaintiffs and Morse Arnold Spencer as defendant. The petition states that Rhoda Maloney died on February 12, 1895 and that plaintiffs and defendant are the only surviving heirs. It is asserted that the defendant, Morse Arnold Spencer is a minor and cannot make transfer of his portion of the property. In addition to the defendant, the heirs are Hardy E. Maloney, Benjamin W. Maloney, Alfred C. Maloney, Minnie I. Spencer, Ethel I. Rice and Rufus Spencer.

The plaintiffs ask the court to grant permission to sell 140 acres of land, three and one-half miles southwest of Elmo, to which they are heirs in partition.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter-box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives."—Mrs. ENGLEMANN, 2632 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N.Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of nearly fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Englemann.

You should give it a fair trial now.

Live Stock Declines; Meat Prices Rise

(Special Correspondence)

Washington, July 10—Sharp contrasts between the decline in the prices of farmers' products at the farm and the rapid rise in the cost of living, particularly in the large cities, continue to be impressive features of official reports and statistics issued by the departments of the Government. The most recent figures issued by the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Labor present striking disparities between the producer's returns for what he sells and the consumer's outlay for what he buys, particularly in the urban centers.

The Department of Labor reports the variation in the prices of certain kinds and cuts of meat between March 15 and April 15, this year, and discloses that practically all of these show an increase in cost to the consumer while the live animals from which they were derived were growing less valuable in the hands of the farmer. Some of the meats and the difference in their prices on the dates given were: Sirloin steak, 39.9 cents a pound in March 15; 40.4 cents a pound April 15; round steak, 33.1 cents March 15, 38.7 cents, April 15; rib roast, 34.9 cents, March 15, 35.1 cents, April 15; pork chops, 31.3 cents March 15, 31.9 cents, April 15; lamb, (leg) 34.8 cents, March 15, 35 cents, April 15.

It will be observed that three kinds of meat are represented in this list—beef, pork, and mutton. All three underwent appreciable increases in price. While these several varieties were advancing to the consumer, the animals which supplied them were decreasing in price at the farm. In other words meats were dearer for everyone except the farmer who was selling the hog, the steer, or the sheep.

The Department of Agriculture reports what was happening to the price of live stock in the hands of the farmer between March 15 and April 15. In that period of 30 days hogs declined 3 points, beef cattle ' point, veal calves 3 points, sheep 5 points, and lambs 12 points. The prices of most of these animals at the farm continued to fall between April 15 and May 15. The Department of Agriculture puts the amount of this decrease at 1.8 per cent in the month ended May 15.

"The prices of meat animals—hogs, cattle, sheep, and chickens—to producers of the United States decreased 1.8 per cent from April 15, to May 15; in the past ten years prices increased in like period 0.4 per cent", says the Department of Agriculture's bulletin. "On May 15 the index figure of prices for these meat animals was about 10.9 per cent lower than a year ago, 2.7 per cent lower than two years ago, and 25.1 per cent lower than the average of the past 10 years on May 15".

To Translate Bible Into Indian Tongue

Fifty Years Of Labor Nearing Reward As Dictionary and Grammar Take Form

Syracuse, N. Y., July 10—After 50 years of striving, Rev. William S. Hayward, retired Episcopal clergyman, is at last on the way to attainment of his goal—a dictionary and grammar of the language of the Iroquois Indians, which he will use to give the Six Nations a correct translation of the Bible from the Hebrew and Greek.

The task is one of herculean proportions, especially for a man of Mr. Hayward's age. He is forced to use a magnifying glass for all his readings.

Fifty Years' Work

When Hayward began his work, half a century ago, he found the only source from which he could get any help was a dictionary by Zeisberger, a missionary to the Onondagas in 1750. This work was in German, so Hayward set about to learn the German language. His ministerial work grew so pressing that he had to give up.

Lately he learned that a translation of Zeisberger's dictionary had been made into English. He wrote Miss Ethel Roberts, librarian of Wellesley College, and she has loaned him a copy of the book, one of the two copies in existence.

Even with this aid the work is slow. Zeisberger used the whole English alphabet in his translation, whereas only 11 letters—a, e, h, i, k, n, o, r, s, t and w—are now used by the Iroquois, so all the spelling must be revised.

Church Criticized

Hayward believes the Church has been careless in regard to the Indians; and the people of Syracuse, by paying money to see their pagan ceremonies, are encouraging the Indians in paganism instead of helping convert them, he says.

The Bible has been translated many times into Chinese and Japanese, but the only efforts made along this line for the Indians have been by men who were not classical scholars and so could not do justice to the work.

Missionaries have tried to make the Indians learn English, but Hayward believes the only way to make them realize the full beauty of the Scriptures is to teach them in their own tongue—more beautiful, he says than even the Hebrew or Greek.

Fifty-seven years ago Hayward held his first service in a broken-down meeting house in Sharon, Pennsylvania. Some time later he went to Ogdensburg, where he first came into contact with the Indians.

Preached In Indian

A chief of the St. Regis tribe came to him and asked why he could not give services in the Indian village. Hayward protested his inability to understand the Mohawk tongue, but the Indian overcame his objections by saying that his brother would teach him. The first prayer he learned was the Gloria Patria. Soon he was able to give part of his services in the Indian tongue.

In 1875 Hayward was called to the Onondaga reservation to the Church of Good Shepherd. By this time he could preach a little in the Onondaga dialect and illustrate his sermons for the Indians in their own tongue. He was at Onondaga for ten years. During that time he translated the Holy Communion Office into the Mohawk dialect and also make a translation of the Office for Visitation of the Sick. He has refused to have either work published until he has perfected it.

Church Deed Denies Organ or Festivals

Belmont, Ohio, July 10—What is said to be the most peculiar deed recorded in Belmont County is revealed in an application filed in the Belmont County Common Pleas Court by the Jefferson and Barrister Street Church of Christ here for authority to sell its property.

The unique deed, given June 4, 1838, by Jemima and Amanda Hollingsworth to trustees of the Belmont Methodist Meeting House, reads, in part, as follows:

"Upon the express condition that no organ, or other musical instrument be used in connection with the real estate, or kept on said premises; also, that no fair, show, or festival be held upon or about said premises for entertainment, or raising money for church purposes; that no society, other than the Church of Christ, what ever their character, shall be adopted by thus using said premises.

"In the event that the introduction of any of the aforesaid items, or any others not authorized by the New Testament, shall be vested in a person, or persons, of said Church of Christ who may be opposed to these things, and, in the event of all of said congregation being in favor of any of these items, the title of said property shall be vested in the brotherhood at large who may be opposed to the items herein referred to.'

Late Telegraph News

Kansas City, Mo., July 10.—War declared!—on undesirable characters who patronize the chicken dinner farms.

John L. Miles, county marshal, has asked Louis Oppenstein, police commissioner, to lend him men to aid in preserving law and order at the roadhouses and public chicken dinner farms beyond the city limits.

"I have not enough men to cope with the evil," Miles told the commission.

Commissioner Oppenstein promises to take the matter up with Inghram B. Hook, the other commissioner.

Kansas City, Mo., July 10.—An electrical shock, which Miss Maggie Coins, 17, domestic, sustained while operating an electric iron in the home of Francis T. McCarty, damaged her nervous system to the extent of $20,000, according to charges she made in a suit filed in the circuit court here.

The petition alleged that Miss Coins is a "young country girl, entirely unfamiliar with electricity or electrical appliances and ignorant of the danger of injury from an electrical current." It is also alleged that the iron was defective.

Vinita, Okla., July 10.—If a certain horse in Vinita could talk, he'd probably talk about his hurt feelings.

A man had just bought him for a dollar.

Then to add insult to injury, the same man turned around and bought a gallon of blackberries from a small boy for a dollar.

The horse hung his head, feeling rather cheap.

Eldorado, Kan., July 10.—It's tough when you have the money to buy a car, and then can't find one big enough.

That's what Frank Case, Eldorado's most corpulent citizen, says.

Case has not found a car with room enough back of the steering wheel for his body. Friends suggested that he buy an ordinary car, cut away the front seat, and manipulate the controls from the rear seat.

Kansas City, Mo., July 10.—The flag was at half mast on the grounds of the E. H. Wright O., Ltd., condensed smoke manufacturer, when King Dodo, a great dane belonging to Wright, died.

The factory was shut down all day and the employes all attended the funeral of the animal.

Dodo had been a favorite of people connected with the establishment. He had been exhibited in many dog shows and never failed to win a blue ribbon.

Battery C Members Receive Vaccination

No Danger Attached To Treatment—Makes Person Immune From Typhoid and Smallpox

Members of Battery C were vaccinated for smallpox and given injections for typhoid at the regular meeting last night. This is in preparation for the trip to Fort Sill which will be taken the latter part of this month.

Although a number of men had strong reactions to the vaccination and injections, there is no danger attached to the treatment. The reaction generally occurs about three hours after the person has received the vaccination and injections and the effect lasts from fifteen to twenty-four hours. All persons react differently and the length of time varies. Both the vaccination and injection are supposed to make the person immune from both typhoid and smallpox for a period of three years.

This service was given the members of Battery C without charge. The work was done by Dr. Frank C. Wallis.

Milk Ordinance Is Discussed by Council

Proposed Measure Would Require All Milk Dealers to Have Tuberculin Test for Cows.

The prospective milk ordinance was discussed at a meeting of the city council last night.

Dr. Morgan of Skidmore was present as well as the mayor of Skidmore and a business man there.

It is proposed to require a tubereulin test of every cow in Maryville, if the owner sells milk in any quantity. The present state law requires a test of this kind to be made when the dairy has five cows or more. However, those favoring the proposed ordinance say that this does not protect the purchasers of milk from persons having less than five cows.

It is contended that in some cases milk obtained from the small retailer will not pass the examination required by the state food and drug act, and the tubereulin test required of the large dairy owner.

No definite action was taken by the city council on the proposed milk ordinance last night.

Chinch Bugs are Invading County

Dust and Chemical Barriers Are Best Means Of Control—Coming From Wheat To Corn

The chinch bug seems to be invading the corn fields of Nodaway County.

W. W. Furlong of Barnard, W. M. Golding of Quitman, John O'Riley of Skidmore and Rollie White of Skidmore have reported cases of chinch bugs to the county farm agent's office. Kinnaird has visited all of these farms in an effort to destroy these bugs. In all of the cases reported thus far, the bugs have come from the wheat fields into the corn.

Kinnaird says the best time to kill chinch bugs, aside from burning in winter, is when the young bugs crawl from the wheat at harvest time into the corn. This is the time to use summer barriers. There are two types of barriers—the chemical barrier and the dirt or dust barrier. To make a dust barrier, a deep furrow should be plowed between the wheat and corn fields or around the infested wheat field. A log about eight inches in diameter should then be obtained and a horse or mule hitched to it. The log should be dragged up and down the furrow and a mulch will soon be formed. If the log is kept going back and forth every few minutes, not enough bugs will cross to cause any harm.

The establish a chemical barrier throw up a low ridge of dirt around the wheat firm it down and then apply the chemical. The best is crude creosote with a high napthalene content, although barriers of coal tar, heavy road oil and like material can be effectively maintained. To distribute the chemical, use a cheap pail with a nail hole in the side near the bottom from which the liquid will flow in a small stream as the pail is carried along the furrow or ridge. The creosote barrier should be renewed once a day, preferably in the early afternoon. The other chemical barriers should be renewed more often to hold back a heavy migration.

Cape Girardeau Pushes Church to Forefront

Wants to Be "Best Town in the World in Which to Labor and Live."

Cape Girardeau, Mo., July 10.—The first annual Inspirational Sunday for Cape Girardeau was last Sunday. It is a part of the program being carried on by the church promotion Organization, which is made up of business and professional men of the city, to keep the people impressed with the great importance of the church to the community.

It was one of the largest church days for Cape Girardeau. Most of the churches, regardless of denomination, united in making it a success. Dean Walter Williams of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri at Columbia delivered the address, "The Shuttle of the City."

The Church Promotion Organization is promoting this movement to make the church paramount in Cape Girardeau. The organization is laboring to make this city "the best town in the world in which to labor and live."

To attain this end there is a systematic campaign of advertising being carried on to acquaint everybody with the fact that the church comes first in this community. Three illuminated sign boards in different parts of the city, which remind the people constantly of the factor of the church in the community, and newspaper advertising of the church are maintained by a fund that is subscribed to by the business and professional men of the city.

An Editorial Explaining A Local Adoption Of A New Phase In Business Policy

By Geiss & Richards.

The hardware firm of Geiss & Richards, operating the store formerly owned by Mr. Bennett, is taking this method of bringing the public into an appreciation and understanding of the adoption of the new business phase, "Cash Sales."

The new firm believes that "cash sales" not only mean less bother, but that the policy means a saving to theeir customers. This is how it works out.

"Cash sales" mean more ready cash for any company, and any company having ready cash can swing opportune buys. These opportune buys, at close marginal profits, gives the firm the chance of passing over to the patronage some of the profit saved in buying.

The consumer will buy more carefully with "cash sales" and the firm will be better off, because of more fangible assets and buying power.

Hence the slogan adopted by the Geiss & Richard Hardware Company of Maryville, "Pay Cash and Get More."
